

Digging In: Habakkuk

pre-course material

We would like our weekend in Habakkuk to be a chance to learn from the prophet, feeling the weight and urgency of his concerns and the grace of God's response. The experience of injustice is universal, so no special preparation is needed beyond thinking about it in your own life and the bits of the world you've seen.

To prepare for the weekend, please read through the book a couple times. Write down the ways that your own heart resonates with the prophet's concerns (you don't have to be clear on all the details to catch the mood). What questions do you want to bring to God this weekend?
